Conduct a Search

USING SIMPLE SEARCH (SEMI-ADVANCED)

Using the simple search option, researchers may search across multiple document types simultaneously. They simply need to insert a keyword, and with that, they can filter their search query using the dropdown list options provided which include: 'Title', 'Author name', 'Subject' or 'Full Text'.

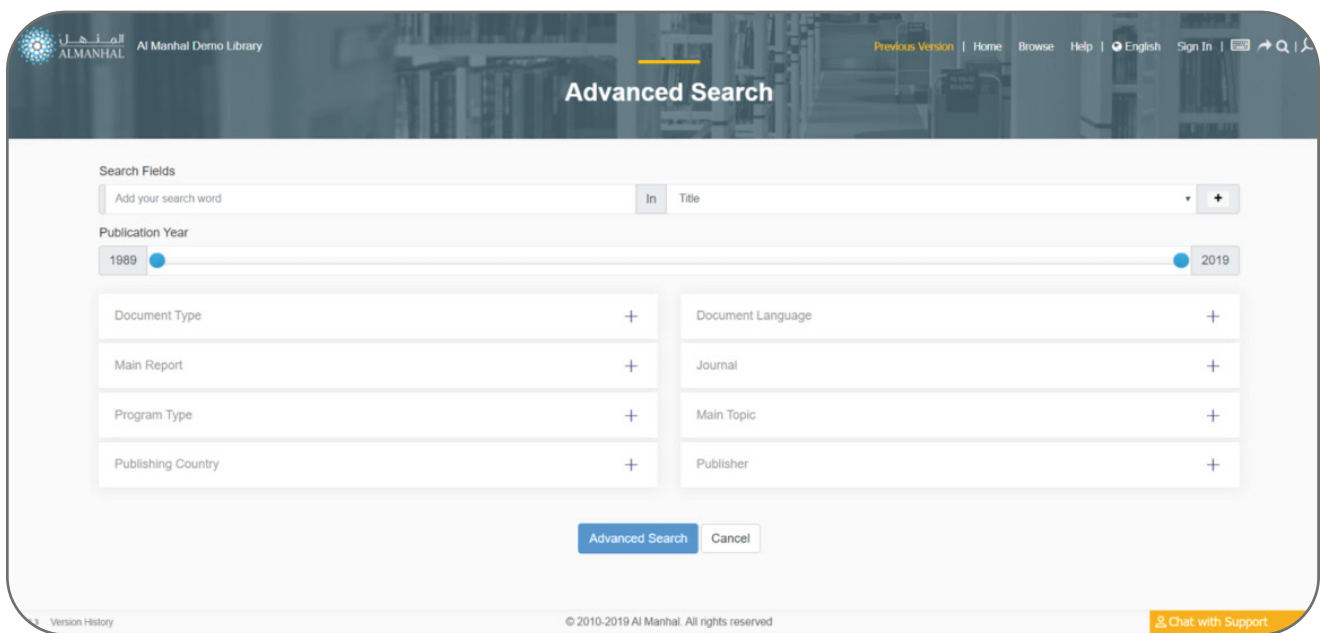

The semi-advanced search is automatically filtered by 'Title', and it can be modified by other options:

- IN FULL TEXT: to search across all 'Al Manhal' content.
- IN TITLE: to search in titles that match the entered keyword.
- IN AUTHOR: to search within Authors' names.
- IN SUBJECT: to search within the topics that match with the inserted keyword.

Conduct a Search

USING ADVANCED SEARCH

The advanced search option allows a researcher to build structured queries to search for a resource by specifying criteria that cannot be defined in ambit of a the simple search.

An Advanced Search includes the following fields:

a. SEARCH FIELDS:

The search field helps the researcher to narrow down the search range by entering a relevant keyword in the 'search field', and then selecting the search criteria from the dropdown list: (Title, Full Text, Abstract etc....).

b. PUBLICATION YEAR:

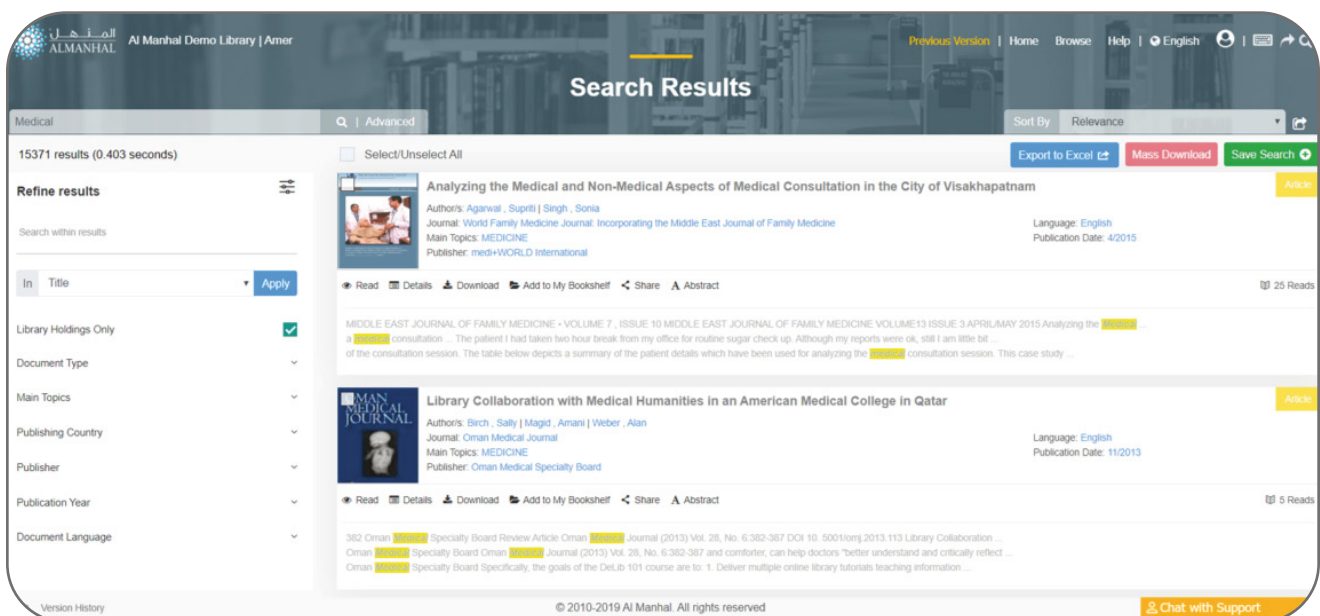

This option allows selecting a specific year for the search term. By default, the search covers the entire-range of years available in the database.

c. SEARCH FILTERS:

The Search Filters allow a researcher to target a search, along with the inserted keyword, such as: the document type (Book, Article, Report, Thesis), Document Language (English, Arabic French, Urdu, etc....), Publishing Country, Journal, Publisher, Main Topic, Main Report and Program Type (Phd, Master and BA).

Search Results Page

The Search Results page displays all the titles related to the keywords entered. From this list, a researcher may access multiple features according to their intent, from the available content.

REFINE RESULTS: Researchers may refine and narrow down the results obtained by applying additional search filters. They can choose any of the options listed such as Document type (Book, Article, Thesis, Report), Publishing Country, Publication Year, etc....

• LIBRARY HOLDINGS ONLY: Researchers can filter the search results based on the subscribed holdings of their institution or view All 'Al Manhal' content.

Export to Excel

Export to Excel: There exists an option to export the search results information for each document to an Excel file such as (Document title, Author(s), Publisher, Main Topic, Language, etc.....)

Sort By

Sort By: The search results list obtained can also be sorted in ascending or descending order, by Relevancy (default), or Author, Title, Publishing Date or Document Type.
